The judge promptly decided that the writer had used "undue and improper influence" with the court, and sentenced him to pay a fine of $50 or go to jail. The clergyman said that he could not pay the fine and took the alternative.

MURDER

Mystery Confronts Police of Chicago Today—Wm. Bates Killed.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—A murder mystery that promises sensational developments was discovered this morning when the dead body of William Bates, aged 25, an automobile chauffeur, was found in the car he had been driving during the night at Lemont, near Joliet. The auto was in the middle of the road and the body of chauffeur Bates was in its accustomed place behind the levers. A 32-calibre pistol bullet lay in the bottom of the machine, a ball having passed through Bates' head. Bates left the Auditorium hotel at 9:30 last night driving a man whose identity is not yet established. Bates had been shot from behind. That the murder was done by some one sitting in the rear seat of the machine is shown by the fact that the cartridge and empty shell were found on the bottom of the car. Footprints seen in the roadway indicate the murderer or murderers sprang from the car after the shooting and walked for a short distance toward Chicago.

Genuine sympathy for Japan entertained by them in her present struggle is a source of profound satisfaction to his highness, and he hoped earnestly that his mission of friendship and good will may in some measure be conducive of strengthening that tie of amity and good correspondence which happily exist between the two countries."

It's a pity men can't postpone their trials as easily as a lawyer can stave them off in court.

GEN. STOESSEL NEEDS SUPPLIES AT PT. ARTHUR

Believes He Can Hold Out Till March.

Providing Food and Ammunition are Received—Cannons' Rear Heard Near Mukden.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 19.—Lieutenant General Stoessel's report expresses a firm conviction that he will be able to hold out at Port Arthur until the Baltic squadron arrives in March, on the condition that he is supplied with munitions and stores. The government has instructed its agents abroad to supply General Stoessel's requirements at any cost. Emperor Nicholas will leave for Caucasus on Dec. 3 to bid farewell to the Cossackian cavalry. The United States is likely to profit, both directly and indirectly, from the execution of the large naval program which Russia is now elaborating. The vital importance of the sea power has been Russia's bitterest lesson of the war, and the government is fully determined that the maintenance of the empire's position in future as a first-class power will be impossible without an adequate navy. If the losses the Pacific fleet has already sustained should be followed by disaster to Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron, it will be necessary not only to rebuild the whole navy but to increase its strength.

A dispatch from Lieutenant General Sakharoff says that during the night the Japanese attacked the Russian position in front of Poutloff (Lone Tree) hill, but were repulsed.

The discontent of the Koreans is increasing. Cases of armed resistance to the Japanese are reported.

STATUE

Given by the Kaiser to United States

UNVEILED WITH CEREMONY THIS AFTERNOON

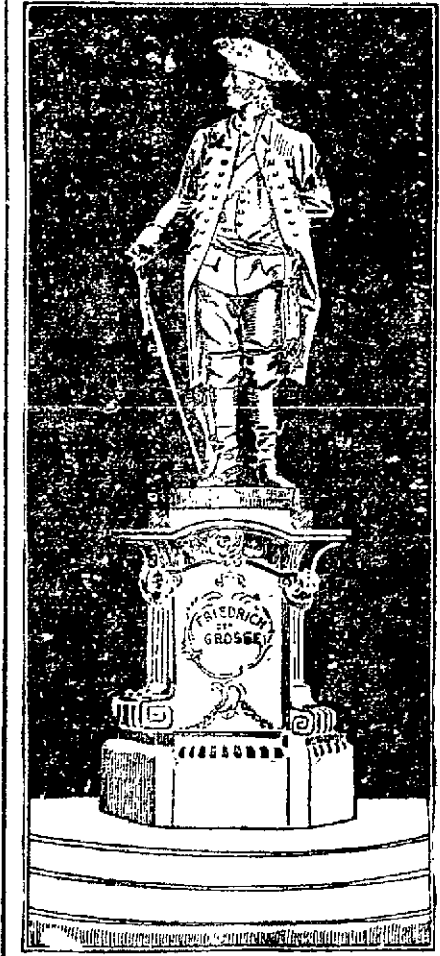

Brilliant Assemblage at the Washington Ceremony.

FREDERICK THE GREAT STATUE

President Roosevelt, German Ambassador and Envoys, Diplomatic Corps Present

Washington, Nov. 19.—A brilliant and distinguished assemblage gathered this afternoon on the grand esplanade of the Army War college around the pedestal of the bronze statue of Frederick the Great, the gift of Emperor William to the American people. The statue was unveiled by Baroness Speck von Sternburg, the wife of the German ambassador, and there was a great military and official display.

Immediately back of the statue were seated President Roosevelt and his cabinet, the German ambassador and Baroness Speck von Sternburg, Lieutenant General von Loewenfeld and Major Count von Schmeltow, the emperor's special commissioners to the unveiling, and the entire diplomatic corps, all in full uniform. On stands to the right and left of the statue were officers of the army and navy in full dress uniform, the members of the supreme court, members of congress and other invited guests. Directly in front of the pedestal of the statue were grouped the members of the German societies from various parts of the country who came to Washington for the ceremony. With in the gates of the Army War college, along the line of march to the esplanade, were stationed troops.

Appropriate addresses were made by President Roosevelt, Ambassador von Sternburg, General Chaffee, chief of staff; Major General Gillespie of the general staff, master of ceremonies; Lieutenant General von Loewenfeld, one of the special commissioners sent to the unveiling by the emperor, and Charlemagne Tower, American ambassador to Germany.

President Roosevelt's address included a terse review of the military and political achievements of Frederick the Great. The sturdy character of the old warrior was depicted as one worthy of emulation. Praise was bestowed upon the illustrious house of Hohenzollern and its celebrated deeds were briefly recounted. The president expressed his appreciation of Emperor William's gift, referred at some length to the existing friendly relations between Germany and the United States, and prayed for a continuance of the same. Ambassador Speck von Sternburg's remarks were of a felicitous nature and caught the fancy of the assemblage.

The emperor's gift is a replica in bronze of the statue which stands in his palace at Potsdam, the original being the work of the sculptor Professor Uthues. The statue is of bronze size, standing more than seven feet. It is mounted on a pedestal of massive granite. Frederick is standing erect, his right arm resting on his military staff, and he looks sharply ahead. The sculptor has vividly portrayed the powerful vigor which was so strikingly a characteristic of the German chieftain.

URGENT APPEAL OF THE TEXTILE WORKERS MADE

Federation Votes to Aid Fall River People.

Money to be Raised by an Assessment of One Cent Each Week Levied on Each Member.

San Francisco, Nov. 19.—By unanimous vote the delegates to the American Federation of Labor decided to aid the striking textile workers of Fall River, Mass., to the extent of $25,000 per week for three weeks. If by the end of this time it is found that the strike is not broken, the executive council will, if it sees fit, continue the donation. The money for the purpose is to be raised by an assessment of one cent each week levied on each member of every labor organization affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Stirring and impassioned addresses on behalf of the workers of the Fall River district were delivered. Delegate Driscoll of Boston put the motion before the house, which was carried amid the cheers of the entire convention.

Many delegates arose in their seats and on behalf of the organizations which they represented offered then and there a hand over to Delegate Golden che's to cover the amount of their respective union's assessment. Delegate I. J. of Chicago handed over a check for $1,500 on behalf of the longshoremen, dock and marine workers of his city. Others quickly followed suit, a delegate from the brewers' union even offering to turn over the actual cash if given a few moments' time to get it.

Operatives Pleaded.

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 19.—The news that the American Federation of Labor had voted to raise immediately $75,000 in aid of the strikers here was received joyously by the officials of the various textile unions and the strikers in general. The action at San Francisco is considered by most of the union officials as the only step necessary to enable the strike to be carried to a finish. It is estimated that it costs about $10,000 weekly to conduct the contest against the mill owners.

Should sentiment favor revision the President may call an extra session about April.

FRANTICALLY

The Naked Boy on a Box Car Waved His Hands—Refused to Wear Stolen Clothes.

Akron, O., Nov. 19.—Anthony Laird, aged 17, who says he is a resident in Greenville, Pa., was taken off the top of a box car in a west-bound freight train yesterday by officers and employees of the Union Station. He was without clothing and was waving his arms frantically as the train pulled in. The naked boy was seen on the cars as the train passed through Lorain, and local officers were notified. He said that he had escaped from an insane asylum in Pennsylvania, where he had been placed by his parents because he wanted to join the navy. His clothing was on top of the box car on which he had been standing.

Laird said that the clothing had been stolen, and that he would no longer wear stolen property.

Two of the men had been in jail five months. The others were out on bonds. There remain similar charges against 17 men, including Charles H. Moyer, president, and William D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer, of the Western Federation of Miners, but it is doubtful whether these cases will ever be tried. Since the election about 50 men who had been deported have returned and have not been molested.

The string of gems was an heirloom which had been in the possession of the Holley family for over a century.

MAYOR PERRY

Charged With Accepting Bribe at Grand Rapids Takes Stand in Own Defense.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 19.—Former Mayor George R. Perry took the witness stand in his own behalf in the case in which he is charged with having accepted a $2,333 bribe from ex-City Attorney Lant K. Salisbury in connection with the Lake Michigan water scandal. He produced letters he received from eastern parties in reference to a city water supply and letter-press copies of letters he had written in this connection. The most prominent feature of these letters is the repeated assertion that Grand Rapids should never go to Lake Michigan for its water supply. Perry denies absolutely the charges of Salisbury.

RATHER Than Disgrace Mother the Poor Little Fellow Committed Suicide—He Begged Forgiveness.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Nov. 19.—Driven frantic by fear of arrest for stealing a box of candy, Leroy Messner, a 12 year old boy, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid yesterday afternoon rather than disgrace his mother by being sent to jail.

Just losing consciousness the child murmured to his agonized mother as she bent over him:

"Mamma, I would rather die than bring disgrace on you. I did not think what I was doing."

Thursday morning a seal on a Chicago Great Western freight car was broken and several boxes of candy taken therefrom. Detectives located the stolen articles in the possession of several boys attending a neighboring school, and three of the boys were arrested. Word was brought to young Messner that the officers were looking for him and would soon be at his home to arrest him.

The boy became hysterical with fright and talked incoherently to his parents, trying to tell them what he had done. Rushing from the presence of his mother he found a bottle of carbolic acid in the pantry and drank its contents. He died half an hour later. It is said that the young boy was led in trouble by the older boys, and that he did not enter the car, but was given one of the stolen boxes by one of the real thieves.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Search for more bodies in the plants of the Pyle National Headlight company and the Acetylene Apparatus company where a series of explosions Friday threatened destruction to an immediate area of property, was resumed this morning by members of the city fire department, who are still inclined to believe the casualty list is larger than four dead as finally reported last night.

Several employees who are missing and whose names have been placed in the fatality column, have made their appearance, some unharmed and others slightly injured. The known dead are: Ralph Wells, superintendent of the Pyle company; Thomas Jennings, engineer; Amos Watkins, assistant superintendent; George Muehl, draughtsman of Peoples' Gas company.

ELECTRIC ENGINE TESTS

Motor For New York Central Service Beats Steam Machines.

RIVALS EASILY OUTDISTANCED.

Six Hundred Ton Train Drawn at Rate of Fifty-five Miles an Hour. Lighter Trains Faster Yet—The Locomotive Stops as Easily as It Starts on its Course.

One of the most important events that have taken place in railroad history, when the official trial of the electric locomotive which has been built for the New York Central railroad's service into New York city was held near Schenectady, N. Y., says the New York Herald.

The tests were most successful in every way, and it is declared they fully demonstrated that the electric locomotive is the coming power for railroad traffic. A series of races were run during the day, and in every instance the electrical engine proved more than the equal of the steam engines, picking up speed in a manner little short of wonderful and easily outdistancing its rivals.

Guests of the New York Central company were brought from New York to Schenectady on a special train of Pullman cars, which were drawn to the stretch of equipped track near Hoffman's Ferry and attached to the electric locomotive.

The most exciting part of the programme was a race between the electric locomotive and three steam engines, and the ease with which the new engine beat the others was the greatest surprise of the day. The electric locomotive with the train of cars attached and two steam engines with no weight to draw were run to the head of the course near Hardin's Crossing and laid over there to wait for the New Yorker, one of the fast trains of the Central railroad. The two steam engines were allowed some distance in which to get under headway, and the electric locomotive started from a dead stop as the New Yorker swung by.

The engines began the spurt neck and neck. Owing to the fact that the others had a flying start the electric locomotive was greatly handicapped, but it picked up speed with wonderful quickness and before a mile of track had been traversed it was running more than sixty miles an hour and was on even terms with the other trains. So fast did it gain from this point that it was necessary to slow up in order to let the others catch it and make the race more exciting. It then dashed ahead at a speed of nearly seventy miles an hour and easily showed its superiority to the steam engines.

The air was filled with smoke from the locomotives as the engine drivers put on full steam in an effort to beat their formidable rival, and as they dashed around the curve at the substation they were almost hidden from view.

Another pretty race was between the electric locomotive and the New York Central engine Mohawk. It was the closest of the day. Nine heavy cars were attached to the electric locomotive, while the Mohawk was run alone. For the first two miles neither could gain, but as the racers neared the substation the electric locomotive slowly pulled ahead and gained so rapidly that, despite the heavy train behind it, the steam engine gave up the race after another mile had been run.

According to the figures taken of the run, a rate of more than fifty-five miles was reached while the electric locomotive was attached to a 600 ton train, and when drawing 500 and 400 ton trains the speed attained was nearly seventy miles an hour. With the short stretch of track at the service of the company for the tests this is considered more than satisfactory.

Another official test was held in the afternoon under the direction of the General Electric company officials, who had as their guests prominent electrical men from all parts of the country. High speed was again reached, and every test was successful.

Divested of technicalities, the new electric locomotive is a double headed machine standing 14 feet 4 inches high at the central portion, weighing 13 tons gross and 69 tons as the superstructure rests on the drivers, says the New York Times. Its total length is 37 feet, with a total wheel base of 27 feet. There are eight driving wheels and two pony trucks, one at either end of the rigid base containing the drivers, this making it a twelve wheel locomotive. The drivers are but 44 inches in diameter, about half the size of the drivers of the ordinary steam locomotive. It has a normal horsepower of 2,200, with a maximum of 3,000, and a guaranteed speed when drawing a 500 ton train of sixty miles an hour.

The perfect ease of starting and stopping the trains drawn by this giant motor was satisfactorily shown. There were none of the inevitable jerks that accompany the starting of a train drawn by a steam driven locomotive. The motion at starting was as if some powerful suction was drawing the train into space, a smooth, gliding motion, with scarcely a perceptible jar. Stoppages immediately after attaining the highest rate of speed were made with equal ease.

Power for the operation of the locomotive is had from a substation built alongside the experimental track, which is a duplicate of the stations to be used in New York when the new system is installed. The locomotive is fitted with shoes to take power from a third rail and also with overhead contact appliances, so that power may be taken from an overhead rail.

WINE AGAINST DEATH.

Strange Wager of Mexican War Veterans Nearing Decision.

A wager between wine and death made fifty-five years ago may soon be paid, says the Chicago Tribune. In the vault of a bank at Covington, Ind., reposes a bottle of ancient vintage, the contents of which will be drunk by the single survivor of a little band of twenty soldiers of the Mexican war. The wager is the most unique of the kind on record. After the close of hostilities with Mexico twenty of the veterans who went to the front from Fountain county, Ind., met in reunion. This was in 1849. It was voted to assemble yearly thereafter on Thanksgiving day.

At the first dinner a bottle of wine was presented to the little company, and in a half joking manner one suggested that the bottle remain unopened until but one survivor remained, this one to quaff the wine to the memory of those gone before. The idea met with instant favor, and it was so agreed. Each year the annual dinner has been held, and each one more closely centered the ties of comradeship formed on the plains of Mexico. For years at the annual gatherings the bottle has occupied a place of honor at the head of the table and was annually the subject of merry jests and predictions as to who would be the last survivor to drink its contents. As the years passed and the little band became reduced in numbers the jests ceased, and instead the old soldiers who were left looked with awe and veneration upon the flask, regarding it as a link that binds them to the memory of those who have gone before.

Now there are seventeen who have crossed the dark river, leaving three who will likely assemble on next Thanksgiving day. Of the three who are left all are past eighty years of age, and all know full well that soon the strange compact made in 1849 must end. Each wonders to whom the lot will fall. In the yearly interval between the Thanksgiving day reunions the bottle of wine is kept safely under guard in the bank vault, but before many years it will be removed from its place of deposit for the last time. For fifty-five years it has been preserved, a pathetic memory of the shadowy past, but it will not be long until its mission will be fulfilled.

TRIP FOR TORPEDO BOATS.

American Fleet of Five to Sail to the Philippines.

A fleet of torpedo boats, consisting of the Bailey, Barner, Biddle, Porter and Dupont, all members of the reserve torpedo boat flotilla of the United States navy, is soon to be subjected to an unusually severe test, says the New York Post. It will start from Hampton Roads on a cruise to the Philippines by way of the Atlantic ocean, Indian ocean and up the Pacific. Never before has there been an expedition by torpedo boats which in the distance to be covered and the difficulties to be encountered compare with this prospective voyage.

The largest of the five torpedo boats is the Bailey, which is 205 feet in length, 10 feet beam, nearly 7 feet draft and has a displacement of 290 tons. Her triple expansion engines are capable of developing 5,600 horsepower and sending her through the water at a speed of thirty-five miles an hour. The Barner and Biddle are sister ships and are 157 feet in length, 18 feet breadth and 175 feet displacement. Each has a record of 32 miles per hour. The Porter and Dupont are each 175 feet in length, 18 feet beam and as speedy as the other twin craft.

The long journey to the orient will be not only a severe test of the torpedo boats, but in slightly less degree a trial of the health and strength of the officers and men aboard these small war vessels. The question of coal supply is one of the problems which confronts the officers who have in hand the planning of this protracted voyage, but it is pointed out that with their steaming radius of more than 3,000 miles there is no danger in sending these little ships to the coast of Asia. The proposed trip of the torpedo boats is the result of the success which last winter attended the sending to the far east of a flotilla of torpedo boat destroyers. The destroyers are larger and stancher than the torpedo boats, but even the voyage of those vessels was a nine days' wonder in naval circles, and the more daring project now proposed will doubtless arouse even more widespread interest.

The Thanksgiving Bird.

The original name of the turkey was oocoooco, by which it was known by the native Cherokee Indians, says the Sunset Magazine. It is supposed that our Pilgrim Fathers, roaming through the woods in search of game for their first Thanksgiving spread, heard the oocoooco calling in the familiar tones of our domesticated fowl "Turk, turk, turk." These first Yankee hunters, mistaking this frightened cry of the bird for its real song, immediately labeled it "turkey," and turkey it is to this day. Much more beautiful and musical was the Indian name "oocoooco," the notes peculiar to the flock when sunning themselves in perfect content on the river beaches.

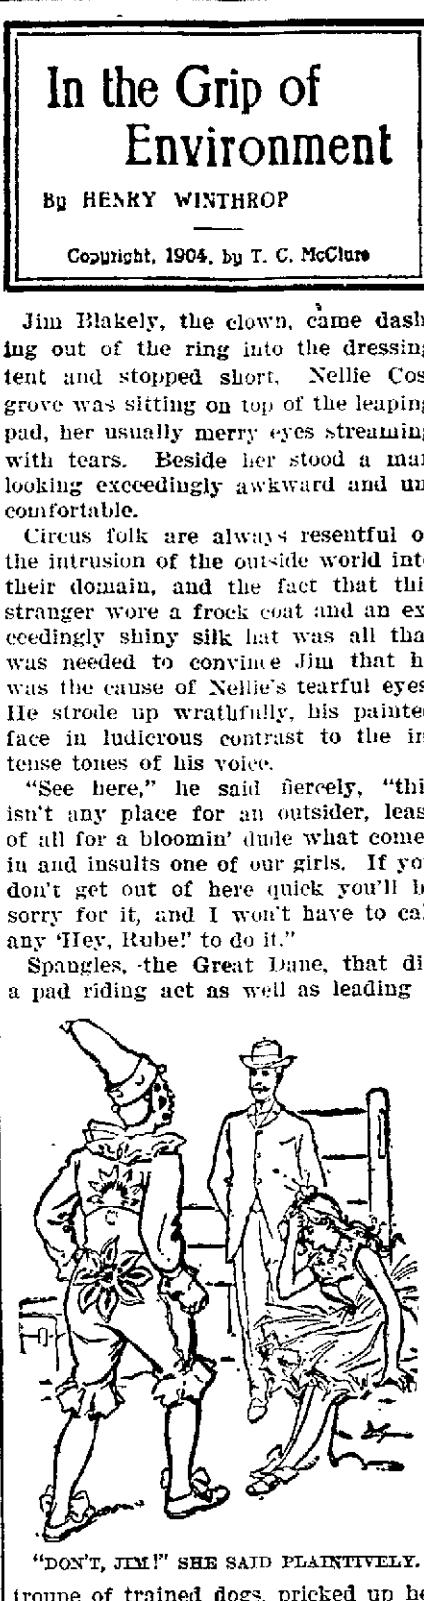

A Tax on Theater Tickets.

Victoria, in Australia, will probably be the first British community to levy a tax on amusements for the support of local charitable institutions, says the London Chronicle. Mr. Bent, the premier, proposes a tax of a penny on every shilling spent in the purchase of theater tickets. The Melbourne theatrical managers are alarmed at this proposal, which they say means a levy of 8 per cent on their gross takings. They have had a long conference with the premier, but did not succeed in converting him to their belief.

In the Grip of Environment

By HENRY WINTHROP

Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure

Jim Blakely, the clown, came dashing out of the ring into the dressing tent and stopped short. Nellie Cosgrove was sitting on top of the leaping pad, her usually merry eyes streaming with tears. Beside her stood a man looking exceedingly awkward and uncomfortable.

Circus folk are always resentful of the intrusion of the outside world into their domain, and the fact that this stranger wore a frock coat and an exceedingly shiny silk hat was all that was needed to convince Jim that he was the cause of Nellie's tearful eyes. He strode up wrathfully, his painted face in ludicrous contrast to the intense tones of his voice.

"See here," he said fiercely, "this isn't any place for an outsider, least of all for a blooming dandy what comes in and insults one of our girls. If you don't get out of here quick you'll be sorry for it, and I won't have to call any 'Tey, Rubel' to do it."

Spangles, the Great Dame, that did a pad riding act as well as leading a troupe of trained dogs, pricked up her ears knowingly and rose to her feet. "Hey, Rubel," the circus man cry from time immemorial, was no new sound to her, and she looked affectionately at the left leg of the stranger's carefully creased trousers, deciding that a spot about four inches below the knee would be the strategic point for a grip.

Nellie raised a hand. "Don't, Jim!" she said plaintively. "He hasn't said anything to me. It's just that they want to take me away."

"Take you away?" he cried incredulously. "Why, you've been with the old show ever since your ma died of yellow fever in Rio, and we picked you up the next season. That was way back in 1892, and you were a little shrimp of twelve. Take you away! I'd like to see the man who'd try it!"

"It's the money," she explained despairingly. "I'm an heiress, and this gentleman is the lawyer. He wants me to go back to New York with him tonight."

For a single moment Blakely's frame grew rigid. The lawyer, a keen observer of men, followed clearly the mental strain the circus man was undergoing. He could see what the girl had never seen, that this man with the uncouth mask of zinc and carmine loved the little rider, and in the brief struggle he read the fight of an honest man with his own desires. In that short space Blakely made his fight. When he spoke his voice was cold and commonplace.

"We always said," he commented, "that your mother's people must be of the right sort. I'm glad of it. Work with the tents isn't for such as you." Then he turned, but more than the makeup came off on the towel as he hurriedly changed his face for the dog act.

As one in a daze he put his pets through their paces, and after the show was over and the concert audience was slowly filing into the show he still went about his work as though in a dream.

He had loved and watched over Nellie ever since that time in Rio Janeiro when, "way back in 1892," they had picked up the little slip of a girl, the sole survivor of a circus troupe which had played through South America the season before.

He had known Frank Cosgrove well, a fine, gentlemanly fellow, who had run off with an English girl when her parents had objected to her marrying the "riding master" of an English caravan.

They had come to America to escape memories, and she had taken up with circus life as willingly as though she had not been reared in luxury. It was Blakely who had persuaded Delmore to take the girl into the troupe, and it was he who had completed her education as a ruler. Before a broken leg compelled him to take to clowning he had been a wonderful bareback somersaulting himself.

He had hoped some day to make her his wife when the nest egg in a city savings bank had grown large enough to warrant the purchase of a country place and assure a competence when they should have retired. Until then he had spoken no word of love, but rather had encouraged her to look upon him as her foster father.

Now he was to lose her and all that he had planned and worked and saved for. But it was best for her—that was enough for him.

He took no part in the ring bank chat after supper. He had no heart to sit there about the bank and hear the comment that would be made about the good fortune, and he went out back of the dressing tent, and lighting the short stub of a pipe he carried, blew great clouds of smoke into the soft evening air, as he tried to think what the circus would be on the morrow, with no little Nell to make every one merry.

There in the soft light that came through the tent she found him. Out from all was life and movement. Here they were practically alone. She slipped down beside him on the overturned manger and slipped her hand into his. His horny palm closed over her tiny fingers, and he put away the pipe, but gave no other sign. It was she who opened the conversation.

"I feel like a dream girl tonight," she began confidently. "Don't you remember how we used to plan that if we ever got money we would start a show of our own, and only have in the company people we really liked and make them do only one act apiece?"

He laughed shortly.

"It's funny what rot we think. Now you've got the money, you've got to go and live up to it. It would never do for an heiress to ride in the ring."

"I don't want to go a bit," she protested. "This is the life I know and love. I want to stay here and be myself, not another girl all dressed up, with servants and all that sort of thing."

He turned on her sharply.

"See here, Nell," he commanded. "Don't talk like that. It's hard work doing two acts twice a day. It's not for you, my girl. Make up your mind to that."

She turned up the turf with the toe of a dainty shoe. "I don't want to make up my mind to it," she protested. "I don't care for the old money. I want to be here with you and all the rest. You hurt me!" she broke off suddenly, releasing her hand from his grasp and rubbing it.

"I didn't mean to hurt you, child," he said sadly. "I was thinking." He could not tell her how that one sentence had torn at his heartstrings, already sore. He rose. "Well, I've got to go in and get Spangles ready. I'll say goodby after the show." He turned on his heel, and presently she could hear him calling to the dog. Then other sounds of preparation began, and presently she, too, went inside.

The "round top" was already packed in the wagons and on its way to the cars when Nellie emerged from the women's side of the dressing tent, where the lawyer waited impatiently for his charge. She went up to the boss property man. "Put my trunk in the wagon, Sam," she said. "I'm going on with the show."

The lawyer blustered and stormed, but she was adamant, and finally he appealed to Blakely.

"You can't go with us, Nell," said the clown, his face as white as though he had not removed his ring makeup. "There is no reason why you should stay on."

She made him a saucy courtesy. "There is every reason, good sir," she smiled. "In the first place, this is my life, the only one I know or want, and besides"—she went very close and whispered in his ear—"besides, I found out back of the tent there that I—loved you."

And after that what could Blakely say?

The Difference.

Uncle Jared and Uncle Benjamin made a sorry pair. True there was blood on Uncle Benjamin's forehead, and he looked white and faint. But Uncle Jared, who tried to support him, walked with a very pronounced limp, displayed only one coat tail where two should have been and was rumpled and bedraggled generally in a way to suggest participation in a riot.

"What's happened to you two?" asked a townsman.

"That pesky colt of Benjamin's run away and threw him just as I came along," Uncle Jared answered. "I'm giving him a lift along toward home."

"Look as though you needed one yourself," pronounced the inquisitor. "What's been happenin' to you?"

"Who? Me? Why, nothin' to speak of—just been to town to see the big procession. Got more or less hustled round and tromped on, but"—he stooped painfully to adjust a shoe which had been ripped open so that half of the upper flapped as he walked.

"Don't see much difference betwixt ye, Judgin' by the display o' wreckage," the neighbor persisted.

"There's considerable difference, I take it," Uncle Jared answered, with conclusive dignity. "Benjamin's met with an accident, but I've been pleasured in"—Youth's Companion.

The Rector's Blunder.

This is a verbatim report of a conversation that took place in an upper Broadway apartment one Thursday afternoon about six months ago:

"Is this Mrs. So-and-so?"

"It is."

"I am the assistant rector of the Jericho church."

"Oh, yes. Won't you come in?"

"Thank you. I saw your name in the registry and have been trying to find time to call on you ever since I came to the church, but somehow I could not get around to this neighborhood until today. But I think I know your children. Your son sings in the choir, does he not?"

"Yes."

"And your little girl is in Miss Anderson's Sunday school class, is he not?"

"Yes."

"How old are the children?"

"Willie is fourteen and Mamie is nine."

"Well, well, anybody would think your children were older than that."

And he doesn't know to this day why that woman has stopped going to church.—New York Herald.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Grace Morand Fennessey, 28, the wife of Colonel James E. Fennessey, proprietor of Heuck's opera house in this city and well known throughout the country as a leading member of the vaudeville theatrical syndicate, committed suicide by swallowing carbolic acid. Recently her husband instituted divorce proceedings. She has been despondent ever since, and this is believed to be the cause for her committing suicide. She married Colonel Fennessey a year ago last June in the "Little Church Around the Corner" in New York city. She was a daughter of James E. Morand, president of the Indianapolis Transfer company.

The accused pleaded not guilty before Commissioner Gaines and were released on $5,000 bail each pending hearing on Monday. The alleged shortage came to light several months ago and was made up by the other stockholders.

OLD AGE BROUGHT INFIRMITIES

To "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

Oliver Wendell Holmes, after eighty years of life had rolled over his head, declared that he was "eighty years young." So may every man and woman in Newark, said Druggist Frank D. Hall, "if they will take proper care of themselves, kept built up and their bodily tissues from wasting."

"I wish I could persuade every person in this vicinity who 'feels old,' whether they are so in years or not, to take our splendid cod liver oil preparation, Vinol. It is by far the greatest tissue builder and invigorant in the world for old people. Vinol is not a patent medicine, but simply contains the body-building, strength-creating properties of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh colds' livers, and we guarantee that it will repair worn tissues, check the natural decline and replace weakness with strength."

"There are hundreds of old people in this vicinity who need just such a strength-maker and tissue-builder as Vinol. Their blood is thin and sluggish, but we guarantee that Vinol will enrich and quicken the blood and build up the system. It contains no whisky or strong stimulants, which have a bad effect and weaken and break down, and we therefore wish every person who 'feels old' in this vicinity would try Vinol on our guarantee to return their money if they are not satisfied." Frank D. Hall, druggist.

Previous Landslides.

Great as Mr. Roosevelt's majority in the electoral college is, it is by no means unprecedented.

In 1820 James Monroe received 231 electoral votes to one cast for John Quincy Adams, a majority of 230.

In 1840 William Henry Harrison received 234 votes to 60 for Martin Van Buren, a majority of 174.

In 1852 Franklin Pierce received 251 votes to 42 votes for Winfield Scott, a majority of 212.

In 1864 Abraham Lincoln received 212 votes to 24 for George B. McClelland, a majority of 191.

In the election of 1872 Grant received 286 votes, while 56 Greeley electors were chosen whose votes were divided when the college met by reason of Greeley's death, Grant's majority being 206.

In 1892, Cleveland had 277 electoral votes, Harrison 140 and Weaver 27.

Considering the growth of the country since 1872, and the increase in electoral votes the Republican landslide in 1872 was twice as large as the landslide in 1904. Yet, four years later, in 1876, the Democrats carried the country and Tilden was fairly elected President. There is no reason why any Democrat should lose courage and hope in face of the present situation. Folk of Missouri may be our Tilden in 1908.

Judge Parker has wasted no time in vain regrets over his defeat for the Presidency, but has promptly set to work to practice law. He has removed his residence to New York city and opened a law office there. Two remunerative appointments have been given him by the court already, and there is every prospect that so far as an income is concerned he will have a larger one than he enjoyed from his salary as chief justice of the New York court of appeals. Both his friends and opponents will be glad to know of his success. In resigning his position as chief justice when he became an active candidate for the Presidency he showed a high appreciation of the proprieties and earned the good will of his fellow-citizens. That he should immediately after the result of the election become known announce his intention of seeking no further political honors, and at once resumed the practice of the law, shows that he is possessed of sound judgment and the sort of true Americanism that every real son of the Nation desires.

GOVERNOR'S TROUBLES

Held Responsible for Mistakes of Both Himself and Last Legislature--Forakerites May Defeat His Renomination--Some Figures on the Late Election.

Columbus, O., Nov. 19.—No diagram is required to prove that the lot of the governor of Ohio is not a happy one. At least this is the opinion of Myron T. Herrick, a genial millionaire from Cleveland, who two years ago made the great mistake of forsaking the peaceful paths of commerce for the strenuous labyrinths of politics. The longer the governor remains in office the more serious his troubles become. He is in part to blame for them, but it must be admitted that while all of the sins of the Seventy-sixth General Assembly are visited upon his head, there were some for which he was not responsible. Regardless of this fact, however, the governor finds himself burdened with full responsibility for both the executive and legislative blunders of the late legislature. Either kind would be enough to stagger a stronger man than the governor, but when he is forced to accept responsibility for both kinds the load seems too great for human endurance. It is growing heavier as time goes on, and there is neither resting place nor respite of any kind in sight.

At the present moment word is being quietly passed along the line among Senator Foraker's followers in this state that Herrick must be defeated for renomination, if the Foraker crowd expect to survive. Special emissaries of the senior senator are giving their time to the circulation of this intelligence and conferring on the situation with factional Republican leaders throughout the state. This movement was inaugurated only a few days ago, following a visit to Senator Foraker by one of the most prominent of his agents now in the field against Herrick.

In this interview Senator Foraker made it plain that in his opinion neither he nor his friends could expect any quarter from the Dick-Herrick combination. Foraker believes that if the next legislature charged with election of a United States senator should be controlled by Herrick and Dick, he could not be returned to the senate. For this reason the present contest is to him and his machine one of self-preservation.

The senator is also convinced, regardless of his personal feeling toward the governor, that in the very best light in which the latter's renomination can be regarded, it is a doubtful experiment and dangerous to future Republican ascendancy in this state. Foraker really believes that the chances are against Herrick's re-election if nominated. It is natural that he should fight, therefore, from honest political considerations as well as from those prompted by factional animosities and personal differences. There is no doubt that the entire old Foraker guard will soon be in the field in behalf of their chief and against the present governor. If the signs seem propitious the beneficiary of this revolt will probably be Lieutenant Governor Warren G. Harding. He will be found willing enough if the prospect can be made as plain to him as would be required by a citizen of Missouri. The Forakerites would also look with favor on Hon. Albert Douglass of Chillicothe, who, at the present time, must be regarded as second only to the Marion statesman as an anti-Herrick possibility.

The vigorous assaults of the Anti-Saloon League upon the governor continues to be a source of great embarrassment to him and his friends. It is now hoped that these assaults have gone so far as to line up the liberal element of the state in solid phalanx for the governor, and for this reason the latter's managers would rather have the Anti-Saloon League carry its antagonism to extremes than pursue a more conservative method of opposition. It is felt that some votes might come to the governor even from outside the Republican party if the league can make the issue clearly one of the intolerance against liberalism. Of course the situation in this regard will be materially affected by the character of the men nominated for governor by the Democrats, but in the meantime Governor Herrick's friends think that they discover in the overwhelming cloud of the Anti-Saloon League's opposition the silver-lining of some liberal support which otherwise their candidate would not receive.

There is every indication that the alliance between Cox, Dick and Herrick will continue, at least up to the next state convention. The Foraker men will have to go it alone in their fight against Herrick, so far as Ohio alliances are concerned. There is no doubt however, that Senator Foraker will have the powerful support of President Roosevelt and the full command of Ohio's share of federal patronage. This undoubtedly means a great deal and may amount to more than the state patronage controlled by Herrick with Cox's influence thrown in. At any rate a merry war is in prospect and within a short time the fur will be flying among the Republican factionalists in a manner calculated to bedevil the atmosphere.

The official count of the late election in Ohio will show a shortage in the normal Democratic vote of no less than 180,000. At the same time the total vote shows no increase, notwithstanding the great increase in population during the past four years. An obvious conclusion can be drawn from these facts. It is that the late election showed no Republican permanent gain in Ohio or elsewhere, but only an immense slump in the Democratic vote, caused principally by stay-at-homes. This slump, however, was not unprecedented, although it has been so heralded. Relatively speaking, President Grant had a larger plurality over Horace Greely than Roosevelt has over Parker and obtained a much larger proportionate majority of votes in the electoral college; and yet four years following the great Democratic slump of 1872, the national Democracy elected Samuel J. Tilden president and eight years later Grover Cleveland. People who profess the fear that the Democratic party is "dead and buried," or that it "cannot recover" will have a better insight into the probabilities of the future if they will acquaint themselves with the facts of the past.

MISS TWIGGS

Former Newark Girl to Marry Dr. Dudley as the Result of World's Fair Romance.

A dispatch from Zanesville announces the engagement of Miss Ella A. Twigg, a beautiful young woman, who about a year ago lived in Newark while she was connected with the Munson music store on West Main street. The message says:

Zanesville, O., Nov. 19.—At a dinner party given at the Planters' hotel in St. Louis last Sunday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Young, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Ella Augusta Twigg of this city and Dr. Clifton Rogers Dudley of St. Louis, a practicing physician of that city and quite wealthy.

This announcement is the culmination of a world's fair romance. Miss Twigg went to St. Louis early in July to take charge of Mr. Young's exhibit.

It was at the art pottery booth that she first met Dr. Dudley, her fiancé. From casual acquaintances they became lovers, the doctor being an ardent wooer, and it was also announced at the Sunday evening function at the Planters' hotel that he wedding will be solemnized in this city next June, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Young. Following the wedding the St. Louis physician and his bride will take an extended honeymoon tour of Europe.

This was not the first medicine I had used in trying to get rid of the trouble, but I can say it is the first that ever gave me quick and lasting relief for the backache entirely disappeared."

BOY'S HAND

Caught in a Corn Shredder Near Jacksontown—Fingers Were Badly Lacerated.

Jackson-town, O., Nov. 19.—While shredding corn on Friday at the home of A. B. Gray, south of town a boy, Cleveland, Bert Blad, son of Mrs. Blad, got his right hand caught in the shredder, and it was necessary to remove the machine before the hand of the pretty boy could be extracted.

Dr. Ratck was immediately summoned and it was found that the thumb and forefinger were badly lacerated, and the doctor thought it would be necessary to amputate one of the members.

The lad had taken the place of one of the men for a few minutes, and he had been cautioned to be very careful but it is thought that the accident was caused by a ragged glove which the boy wore, catching in the machine, drawing the hand in with it.

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide In Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vipers may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate Dandruff and stop falling hair?

No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Herpicide stands the "test of use."

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

ADVICE

As to Roasting a Turkey Given by a New Orleans Man—This is What He Says.

"Ninety-nine women out of every one hundred, ninety-nine cooks out of every one hundred will bake a turkey with the back to the pan," said a New Orleans man, who keeps in touch with the kitchen, "and this is a mistake. I said ninety-nine out of every one hundred. Rather should I have said that the mistake is almost universally made. But few cooks ever think of cooking the turkey the other way. There seems to be a demand for well-browned turkey breasts. But in browning the breast they sacrifice the sweetness of this part of the fowl. The best way to prepare a turkey is to bake it with the breast down. I learned this lesson from Mme. Begue, whose place down in the old quarter, near the French market, has become famed all over the country. She never thinks of baking a turkey with the breast up. The breast is turned to the bottom of the pan, and instead of being dry and tasteless when it is served, it is richly flavored and as sweet and juicy as one would care to have it. You see, all the fine flavoring of the turkey, the juice of the dressing and all the daintier touches flow down toward the breast of the fowl, and when the white meat is served you get the full benefit of every flavor added during the processes of preparing and baking the turkey, in addition to the distinctive taste of the fowl itself.

"Inconvenient and awkward? Not at all. It is just as easy to cook a turkey in this way as in any other way, and the result is infinitely more satisfactory. It is no trouble to arrange the fowl in the pan; if you desire to place the fowl on the table before carving it you will find that it will look quite as well as it would if baked in the usual way, and certainly it will taste much better than it would if you baked the breast until it was dry and flavorless."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Buffeted by a Gale.

Gloucester, Mass., Nov. 19.—The fishing schooner Arthur D. Story arrived from George's Bank and reported the loss of one man overboard and the injury of two others during the recent gale. The schooner tossed helplessly for hours. The crew of 14 lashed themselves to the vessel and suffered severely. During the height of the storm the main boom gave way and one man was swept overboard and lost.

Jeffries Draws Color Line. Spokane, Wash., Nov. 19.—"The story that I have agreed to fight Jack Johnson is not true," stated James J. Jeffries. "I will never fight a negro—back to the boiler works first. I am entirely in the hands of the press and the people. Any white man they choose I will fight on six weeks' notice. Unless this is done before a great while I will retire from the ring and be the only retired champion."

French Monks at Rome. Rome, Nov. 19.—Work upon the monastery near Lucca that is to become the headquarters of the Carthusian Brotherhood, expelled from Grenoble, France, is nearly completed. The general of the order and 300 monks have already arrived. Safes have been prepared for the treasure of the order, which is said to amount to $500,000.

Rube Smith Put Out. Denver, Colo., Nov. 19.—Jimmy Gardner of Lowell, Mass., knocked out Rube Smith of Denver in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout. With the exception of the second round, in which Smith floored Gardner with a right to the wind, the Lowell boy had the better of the milling. The men fought at 135 pounds.

Indictments Notted. Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 19.—Six indictments against ex-Judge F. C. Randolph of the probate court were noted. The indictments charged embezzlements from the state and county of about $9,000. Several other indictments, involving about $21,000, were disposed of several days ago in the same way.

Disastrous Wrecks. Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. "This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung Diseases by Hall's Drug Store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Special Examiner. Washington, Nov. 19.—Luther Conant, Jr., of New York, was appointed special examiner in the bureau of corporations of the department of commerce and labor. Mr. Conant has been financial editor of the Journal and Commerce and Commercial Bulletin of New York, and as such became thoroughly familiar with the general conditions of industry, commerce and finance and the particular facts and conditions with regard to interstate and foreign commerce. CAMBRIDGE GIRL

Knocked Down by Train and the Car
Wheels Cut Off Her Hair—A Narrow Escape.

Cambridge, O., Nov. 19.—A miracle seemingly saved a young woman of this city from almost certain death. To be knocked down by a train and fall with her head so close to the railroad track that the wheels of the passing cars ran over her hair and cut it off close to her head, was the frightful experience of Miss Mattie Yaw of West Wheeling avenue.

Persons who witnessed the accident rushed to Miss Yaw's assistance, expecting to find her dead and mangled body, but instead she escaped death by the narrowest possible margin.

Miss Yaw had gone to the B. & O. depot to meet a friend. At that place the C. & M. tracks run parallel and about a foot only from the station platform, being between the platform and the B. & O. tracks.

In watching for the approach of the B. & O. train, Miss Yaw had evidently forgotten the nearness of the C. & M. tracks and she was struck by a C. & M. coal train.

When struck by the train Miss Yaw was thrown from it instead of under the cars and to this fact she owes her life. However, she was no near the car wheels as to have a part of her hair cut off by them. Besides the loss of the hair she was otherwise painfully bruised.

The California Board of Trade has voted to request the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States to appoint a special commissioner to ascertain and report regarding all agricultural products that can be raised in the State.

H. J. HOOVER'S DENIAL

Of the Report Published in Columbus That His Friends Are Endeavoring to Secure a Pardon For His Christmas Present.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19.—The correspondent for the Advocate called at the penitentiary today to see Harry J. Hoover, the Newark cashier, with reference to the report published in two of the Columbus papers, to the effect that strong political friends are endeavoring to obtain from President Roosevelt a pardon for Hoover as a Christmas present.

"There is absolutely nothing to the report," said Hoover. "So far as I know no friends of mine are making any effort whatever to obtain a pardon for me and I think I would know something of the matter if an effort were being made."

The former cashier thinks that the purpose of the publication was to injure his chance of a pardon rather than to help it, but he emphatically said that no effort whatever is being made to secure a pardon.

Hoover is in splendid physical condition apparently. He looks well and has gained in weight since his arrival at the prison nearly a year ago. He has an easy thing at the prison, being the warden's clerk, and does not have to sleep in a cell or eat with the other prisoners.

Several people, including a number of prominent Republican politicians from different sections of the state, are reported to be making quiet but strenuous efforts to present Harry J. Hoover with a Christmas pardon.

On the sixth day of last December Harry Hoover went to the state penitentiary to begin five years' imprisonment imposed by the federal court for making false entries on the books of the Peoples bank.

The politicians who are now directing their efforts in Hoover's behalf, are said to be headed by a well known leader of Gallipolis. They stand in high favor with the national administration. The pardon, if it comes, must be from the hand of President Roosevelt, as Hoover was sentenced under the federal law.

The foregoing statement is made from an article printed by the Columbus Press-Post. After saying that the application for Hoover's pardon is meeting with opposition the Columbus paper goes on to give a review of the bank case and in conclusion says:

"The bitter feeling against Hoover by Scott's friends and sympathizers has been greatly augmented by the fact that Hoover's influence secured for him a sinecure in the way of employment at the prison as soon as he arrived. He is employed as a clerk in the warden's office, where he is not required to wear the penitentiary uniform, takes his meals at the restaurant free of charge, and sleeps on a cot in the office of Clerk Shook, a large, light, airy room, and is not subjected to the humiliation of being confined behind bolts and bars."

NEWARK-ZANESVILLE CAR

Struck and Instantly Killed Miss Stump of Irville
Saturday Morning—Miss Stump Stepped Too Close to the Track.

A terrible accident occurred at Nashport, just over the Licking county line in Muskingum county, about 9 o'clock Saturday morning, by which a human being was hurled into eternity without a moment's warning.

Miss Elizabeth Stump, an unmarried woman, aged 31 years of Irville, accompanied by another woman named Mary Crozier, of Irville, had started for the station at Nashport to take the interurban car to Zanesville. As they were going down the lane leading to the station they noticed a car approaching the station, and the Crozier woman made the remark that she did not think they could reach the car.

Miss Stump, however, was of the opinion that they could and by extra exertion succeeded in reaching the station just ahead of the car. The Crozier woman succeeded in crossing the track and reaching the platform in safety. Miss Stump, however, was not so fortunate. She was carrying a heavy satchel and had crossed the track and was in the act of lifting her satchel to the platform when the car struck her and she was hurled some distance into a ditch, death being almost instantaneous.

Coroner Matthews of Zanesville, was notified and immediately went to the scene and viewed the body, after which it was taken to her home in Irville. It was a Columbus, Newark and Zanesville limited car which struck Miss Stump. The car was in charge of Conductor Santchi and Motorman O. G. Devore.

The deceased was one of the most highly respected women in the community in which she resided, and her sad death is greatly deplored.

BY OFFICERS

TWO WOMEN WERE CHASED INTO THE COUNTRY.

Elma Berkshire and Myrtle Athey Arrested for Disorderly Conduct on Saturday.

For several days small children living on Cedar street, and on Eastern avenue, in the East End, have been terrorized by two young women. The women would ambush the girls, chase them all over the streets, purloin their fascinators and other clothing, and made life very strenuous for the little ones. They were also in the habit of getting intoxicated.

Saturday morning word was received by the officers that two women were out on a lark, and officers Zergiebel and Callahan started after them. They got on the trail of the women and after following them four miles into the country, succeeded in arresting them and bringing them to the city prison on the charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. The women arrested proved to be Elma Berkshire and Myrtle Athey.

CHEERS

GIVEN FOR LIBERTY BELL AS IT PASSED THROUGH NEWARK.

Number of People Gathered at the Pan Handle Station to See Emblem of Liberty.

The famous Liberty bell, which proclaimed the first findings of American liberty on the fourth of July, 1776, passed through Newark on Friday night en route from the World's Fair at St. Louis, to its permanent home in Philadelphia. The great bell arrived here about 8:30 o'clock on Friday night and was met by a large number of patriotic people at the Pan Handle depot, who feasted their eyes upon the wonderful old relic. As the train began to move out with the great bell, Township Trustee Everett D. Everts, who is noted for his patriotism, proposed three cheers for the old Liberty bell which were given with a vim.

CARD IN PURSE

Leads to a Romantic Wedding—Coshoccon Factory Girl Married a Wisconsin Man.

Coshoccon, O., Nov. 19.—An acquaintance growing out of the finding of an address in a pocketbook sent out from the leather department of the Meek and Beach company resulted in the marriage of Miss Lida James of this city and Mr. Charles Hyttel of Racine, Wis., last Saturday evening.

Miss James was formerly employed as a leather worker here and in a spirit of jest placed one of her cards in a pocketbook which went out with a big order.

The pocketbook fell into the hands of Charles Hyttel, engineer of the tug "Emma Blocher," and a correspondence sprung up which ripened into love. This is the second "from jest to earnest" case which has originated at the Meek and Beach factory, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Pries of this city having become acquainted in the same manner.

Miss James and her sister, Miss Lucille James, left Coshoccon a short time ago for Racine, and the wedding followed.
